By LARRY DENNIS Hastings College and Nebraska Wesleyan University, the two titans of Nebraska small-college basket-ball during the season just past, dominate The Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star's collegiate all-state team for PLAYER 1963-64.

Bennie Cr Hastings, which defeated Fellx Sant Wesleyan twice, once in ov- Eddie Lor ertime, to become the only Sam Singl Nebraska team to stop the Plainsmen, gained two places on the first team. Dick Nelso Bennie Crawford and Eddie Lorentzen, the junior Chet Paul college transfers who paced Hastings to the Nebraska College Conference crown and a berth in the NAIA tournament in Kansas City, were the Broncos honored.

Wesleyan's sharp-shooting Dick Nelson was awarded a first-team berth and iwo other Plainsmen, Chet Paul and Don Beckmann, were placed on the second team.

.The two Hastings stars and Nelson are joined by Chadron's great Fellx Sanford and Omaha freshman whiz Sam Singleton on the first honor unit.

Rounding out the second team are Art Oliver of Midland, Dick Muma of Chadron and Dennis Nelson of Doane.

Crawford and Wesleyan's Nelson were unanimous choices among the ballots received from the state's coaches.

campaign. The 6-6 senior averaged 24.5 points and 17.9 rebounds and at the end of the year held five school scoring and rebounding marks. Over four years he scored 1,469 points to rank second in Chadron history. On a per-game basis, however, he's No. 1.

Sanford got considerable help, of course, from Muma, a 6-2 senior who averaged almost 21 points a game for the Eagles.

Singleton led Omaha to its best season in 10 years, scoring at a 20-point ellp and ranking as the leading rebounder at year's end with an average of 11 per game. His performance helped carry the Indians to within one game of the Central Intercollegiate Conference title.

Except for the lack of height, the second all-star team no doubt could compete on even terms with the first. Oliver, Midland's freshman ace who rewrote most of the records in Wesleyan's Christmas Holiday tourna-ment, ranks with Muma and Paul in the 20-point class. Paul, who averaged 19.8

per g a m e and shot 48% from the field, also averaged 13 rebounds a game to lead the Plainsmen in that department. He was named to the NCAA college division regional all-tournament team at Cedar Falls, Iowa, at season's end.

Beckmann was Wesleyan's defensive whiz and floor leader, a classy playmaker who averaged more than 13 points a game. Ife shot better than 48% from the neur and almost 87% from the free throw line over the season.

Dennis Nelson was the standout on an improving young Doane team, averaging 16.1 in scoring and 10.6 in rebounding to lead the Tigers in both departments.

A pair of rangy sopho-mores, 6-3 Calvin Graham and 6-4 Mel Witherspoon, are the nominees from the state's western powerhouse. They are joined by Norfolk's Fred Jackson, Fairbury's Tom Morrison and York's Mike Shay in the all-star cast.

These were the top votegetters in balloting by the state's junior college coaches. Jackson, a 6-2 sophomore from Omaha, was the only unanimous choice among the selections. He averaged 19 points a game for two sea-sons to gain his place at the head of the list.

Graham was Scottsbluff's leading scorer with a 25-point average and was the secondbest rebounder, hauling in an average of 13.5 per game.

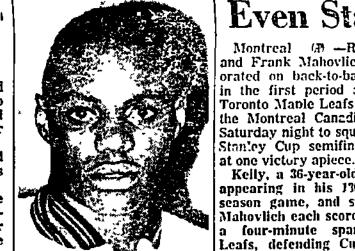

Witherspoon, Scottsbluff's No. 3 scorer with a 165 aver- # age, led the board statistics with 15.4 rebounds each time ; out.

Shay, a 6-4½ sophomore whiz from York, averaged 18.7 points and 12 rebounds per contest over the season. Morrison was a stickout on a weak team, averaging 16.9 points over a 22-game sched-ule and scoring 20 points per game against Nebraska juco competition. He also was Fairbury's best defensive player and an exceptional ballhandler.

"If Tom would have been with a better ball club, he would have been very outstanding," s a y s Fairbury coach C. L. Grovert.

Norfolk's Ron Kupecky, a 15-point scorer, and Vic Sanderson, who averaged 215 for Scottsbluff, also were strong candidates for the honor team. They go on the honor roll with 10 other standouts trom around the state.

vacation usually has a fellow itching to get back on the job as quickly as possible. But this writer hasn't decided yet as to whether the itching stems from inactivity or measles.

The indoor vacation, although not requested, cropped up at a convenient time with the state's prep athletes making the switch from indoor to outdoor sports.

As is the case so often, the switch is taking more time than planned. The villain, of course, is the weatherman, who pays no heed to the notation on the calendar that the high school outdoor track season begins in the final week of March.

Track, golf, tennis and baseball candidates and coaches work under a major handicap as they battle the weather each spring. Their seasons are short to begin with and are interrupted often by inclement weather.

Just about the time that the school year closes the weather begins to become suitable for the athletes. But a few sprinkles, snowflakes or cold weather don't seem to diminish the enthusiasm of either player or coach in the March, April and May campaigns.

Surprise Finish

The death of the Quin-Cities Conference was not entirely unexpected, but the suddenness of its passing was a surprise to many.

Failure of the new league points out the many problems it faced. A variety of conflicting interests was the primary

It wasn't that the member schools didn't make an honest attempt to reconcile their differences. School officials put in enough time in conferences, meetings, etc., that they could have figured out a way to put man on the moon

But that wasn't the problem and there appeared to be no simple solution for the problem in the Quin-Cities lineup.

No Ties, No Worries

Now the Lincoln schools are left without conference affiliation. The Mid-East Conference, of which Northeast and Southeast were members, folded as a result of the Quin-Cities Conference. Lincoln High was a member of the Intercity League, also ended when the Quin-Cities was originated.

Loss of conference ties should create no problem for the Lincoln schools in the next year or two, however, as most of the athletic scheduling has been completed.

In fact, scheduling should be no great problem for the Lincoln schools should they choose to remain independent for a longer period. They have plenty of competition right at home, and can go just about any direction to fill their open dates.
